Midwest Wind Finance Hires Legal Affairs/Project Manager

August 1, 2007

Minneapolis, MN – Midwest Wind Finance (MWF), a firm specializing in financing community scale wind farms throughout the US, has hired Mason Sorenson to be Manager of Legal Affairs/Project Development. He has an extensive background in entrepreneurial company project and operations management and is also a licensed attorney.

Mr. Sorenson will work closely with MWF's wind farm customers as the firm conducts due diligence in preparation for providing financing term sheets and turbine supply agreements.

Mr. Sorenson earned a BA from St. John's University and received his law degree from William Mitchell College of Law. He has always had a strong interest in wind energy. In 1993-94 he held a project management position with Northern Alternative Energy, a Minneapolis based wind power development company. Mr. Sorenson has also held senior positions with several start up companies including The Education Group, and Galileo Education.

MWF President Ken Valley said, "We are pleased to have someone of Mason's caliber and diverse experience join us to help support our rapid growth"
